

PASS PROGRAM STUDY / WORKING GROUP MEMBERS

RTD's pass program study is a yearlong effort – requested by the public and carried out at the direction of the agency's 15-member board of directors – to thoroughly evaluate the pass programs RTD offers and recommend whether any changes should be made to them. Such a recommendation is being made by a 25-member working group that includes members of RTD staff and external stakeholders with connections to regional interest groups:

Carol Buchanan, Denver Regional Mobility and Access Council
David Cook, University of Colorado
Mizraim Cordero, Metro Chamber of Commerce
Crissy Fanganello, City and County of Denver Public Works
Felicia Griffin, FRESC
Mark Imhoff, Colorado Department of Transportation
Susan Jordan, Children's Hospital
Steve Klaussing, Denver South Economic Development Partnership
Ken Lloyd, Regional Air Quality Council
Sheila Lynch, Tri-County Health
Angie Malpiede, Northeast Transportation Connections
Bill Marino, West Colfax
Aylene McCallum, Downtown Denver Partnership
Scott McCarey, Boulder County
Heather McKillop, RTD Chief Financial Officer
Joel Noble, Inter-Neighborhood Cooperation
Kathleen Osher, Transit Alliance
Nicole Portee, Denver Public Schools
Doug Rex, Denver Regional Council of Governments
Karen Stuart, North Area Transportation Alliance
John Tayer, Boulder Economic Development
Michael Washington, RTD Transit Equity Manager
Jeffrey Su, Mile High Connects
Dionne Williams, Denver Children's Office
Mary Young, Boulder

Additional details about the pass program study are on RTD's website, at <http://www.rtd-denver.com/PassProgramStudy.shtml>.