Regional Transportation District

RTD to sound train horns along N Line March 3-4

From Sunday night through Thursday morning, Feb. 27-March 3, the Regional Transportation District (RTD) will conduct work on the signal technology at the E. 124th Avenue crossing, adjacent to the Eastlake•124th Station for the N Line. The work will take place during off-peak hours.

From Thursday night through Friday morning, March 3-4, crews will validate the technology using a test train through the crossing. Per federal requirement, train horns will sound through the crossing during this part of the work.

RTD recognizes that this work can be disruptive and apologizes for the resulting sound the public may hear.

While testing is underway, please remember to obey traffic signs and safety measures in place. Train operators maintain discretion to use train horns under circumstances requiring additional safety precautions and may sound horns at crossings beyond those stated above.

Quiet crossings will resume once the work is complete, with trains using horns only when necessary for safety.
