

The Regional Transportation District (RTD) welcomes contributions from guest bloggers who are agency customers or transit advocates and bring original perspectives about the benefits of public transportation. Items will be published on RTD's virtual newsroom, the News Stop.

Items submitted for consideration must be original material created for RTD that has not been published elsewhere. Guest blogs will be accepted at a maximum of 300 words. Videos and/or still photos with captions accompanying written material also can be provided; however, the privacy of other customers must be respected.

All submissions will be reviewed by RTD, and the agency retains sole discretion to determine which materials to select for publication. All publication decisions are final. RTD reserves the right to edit accepted submissions for grammar and space prior to publication.

Guest bloggers are limited to four published pieces per calendar year.

When submitting a blog, please include a photo and a short bio that can accompany the blog.

RTD's newsroom cannot be used as a campaign platform, and content reflecting that purpose will not be considered.

To submit comments or complaints, click here. To look up or contact Board members, click here.